Truth Jor Today

-STUDIES IN EPHESIANS- #20 The section, 1:13-23 Contains the prayer of the apostle for the saints. If at any time we may feel inclined to envy the gifts of the apostle, we might well begin by copying his graces -- by praying continually. Before we take up the study of the prayer itself, it is well that we look over the preparation for the knowledge he asks that they might receive. Verse 15 also indicates that they had already begun to practice the doctrine. This is also good procedure. We cannot expect further knowledge unless we put into practice what we already know. Now for the 3fold preparation;

1. First there is the gift of the spirit of wisdom. What is wisdom? Somebody has said that it is horse sense. That may be very near the truth. For wisdom is the ability to use what we know. Educators say that it is the ability to exercise foresight. What a great need there is for this among us who try to teach the Word! Some of us would not have said some of the things we have if we had only just a little wisdom. This spirit of wisdom is a gift. We should earnestly covet it. But there is a further step in this wisdom. It is for the acknowledgment of Him. The margin renders this acknowledgment instead of knowledge as in the text. Far too many would like to have all the blessings, but would prefer not to acknowledge Him. Do we do this at every opportunity?

2. Then there is the spirit of revelation. Have you noticed that some can read the Word and get nothing out of it, and another can read the same passage and get a real blessing from it? The Word is not understood except by the revelation of the Spirit. Education is very little help in this matter. It is a gift. All of us can take comfort from this fact. God will explain His Word to those who want to know and who will use it. Now again this spirit of revelation is in connection with the acknowledgment of Him. He cannot be shown forth in our lives or by our words unless we have had Him revealed to us first. That revelation comes thru the reading of the Word and the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit. The spirit of revelation then is another gift.

3. The third thing in this preparation is that the eyes of our understanding must be enlightened. We know too many things which we do not understand. Too often the light cannot come in because the eyes are veiled by traditions. It may be that this should be translated "the eyes of your heart having been enlightened." If so, then there is a growth that must come as a result of it. -THE DISPENSATIONAL FRONTIER -

June 1955

There is quite a diversity of opinion as to where to place this, so we will mention a few which might be considered. In making a list, we found 9 possibilities, all depending on the views taken of Israel and the church. This seems appropriate since 9 is the number of judgment (See Number in Scripture by E. W. Bullinger). The reader should consider each of these very carefully and examine all arguments pro and con.

1. The most common one is the gap between Malachi and Matthew. In fact our Bibles have been divided there, OT and NT.

2. Matt. 13 might be given some thot. It is a point where Israel has rejected their Messiah. The Lord takes the disciples to one side and teaches them the mysteries of the kingdom. Isa. 6:9, 10 is quoted.

3. The death of the Lord on Calvary. Many people think of this as the turning point and that when Israel accomplished the death of their Messiah, they were then set aside in favor of the church.

4. Many denominations claim that they had their beginning at Pentecost -- a feast of the Jews, Acts 2,3. This position is almost as popular as No. 1 above.

5. Some few claim that there was a change at Acts 13 with the sending forth of Paul and Barnabas on their missionary journey. The main argument being that here was the beginning of the gospel of grace. However the argument falls down in that as far as salvation is concerned, men in all ages have been saved by grace, none ever being justified by the law. It was not a dispensation of grace at that time, for devout Christian Jews were still zealous of the law.

6. It is rare that you will find any claiming Acts 19 as a point of division, but we must notice that it is here that Paul takes a body of believers with himself as head and leaves the rulers of the Synagogue for the last time and holds meetings in a school. This was Paul's final break with Jewish authority of any kind.

7. Acts 28:28 is a division that is gaining favor every day. You should read "The Dispensational Frontier" by C. H. Welch in connection with this one. Again Isa. 6:9, 10 is quoted, for the last time and with a finality that takes the attention. The mere quote from Isa. would indicate that at least up to that point Israel was in the ascendency.

8. Acts 28:31 must not be overlooked as a possibility. Gordon K. Edgar of Phoenix, Ariz has written some good material on this one.

9. Also consider A.D. 70 and Titus.

Published monthly, D.V., in the interests of the WORD RIGHTLY DIVIDED. 2 Tim. 2:15.

-THE COUNTERFEIT KINGDOM-

Just as David's kingdom was a type of the Millennial kingdom, just so was Saul's kingdom a type of the pre-millennial kingdom. We must not forget that there was a kingdom that followed David's in which there was peace and in which the temple of God was established. So too, there must be a post-millennial kingdom. But that is a subject we must look into another time.

Saul broke the back of the Amalekite rule which had been fastened upon Egypt and surrounding country for about 6 centuries. He gained such renown that none dared to make war with him. Surely all would think that he was God's man and that his rule was of God. He, however, had an evil spirit come upon him. He set himself against God's annointed. Finally he sought the aid of the powers of darkness. He even killed priests of the tabernacle and set himself over all so that he might have his own way, He regarded not the God of his fathers !

Like Saul, the beast will have an evil spirit upon him, will not regard the God of his fathers (will be a Jew), will not have respect for the temple, and will have a rule peaceful in the main because none will dare to war with him. His kingdom will be a kingdom of or from the heavens. It is a time when the heavens will rule, except for the last  $3 \frac{1}{2}$  years of it, and then the power behind it will be cast into the earth.

There is no doubt about the reception of such a kingdom by Christendom. It will be proclaimed by false prophets before it appears openly. Even now the way is being prepared. Much stress is being put on a coming kingdom which will right the wrongs so patent on every hand. There will be great miracles, not only healing and other false travesties of the gifts of the Spirit, but also fire from heaven and other phenomena to blind, even the very elect, if it were possible. how many statements you can pair off.

This pre-millennial kingdom will very naturally rise out of the present age because there are so many professing Christians who do not set their affections on the things above, but on things on the earth. Their belly being their god, they will blindly follow anything which will give promise of filling their belly. If they mind the things of the flesh, then things of the flesh will have the greater appeal to them. So when a false John the Baptist will proclaim this counterfeit kingdom of the heavens, they will flock to him en masse. A strong delusion will come upon them that they should believe the lie. The end is destruction. This is a day in which we should walk in the light.

-PRACTICING THE PREACHING-

The world has every right to demand that we practice what we preach. God also has the same right, and He does ask it. That is made very plain in both Eph.; and Col. The epistle to the Philippians concerns the working out of our salvation with fear and trembling with a prize in view.

The man who is long on doctrine, but short on practice, is like the man with the one pound or the man with one talent. Both were very talkative. Both buried their responsibility and lived as they pleased. But surely a day of reckoning comes and some are not prepared for it.

There is also a chance that there may be some who will teach in the name of Christ and will even do mighty works in His name and still not know Him or be known of Him. True doctrine is a matter of the heart and not only of the head. True practice must come from the new nature created within, not just from the flesh to make a show.

The practice of good works adorns true doctrine just as good fruit adorns a tree. It is a natural outcome, not something put on. Wax fruit tied on a tree might deceive the eye from a distance, but there is no life in it, no scent, and the color will fade. It certainly would be a poor substitute for food. So also are good works that do not come from a heart instructed in true doctrine. Doctrine without the practice is just as dead as faith without works.

If we teach that God is light, then we can prove it by walking as children of light. If we teach that there is one body and that we are all members on an equality, then we can prove it by not seeking the pre-eminence. These are just samples. Why not open up your Bible to Eph. 1, 2, 3 where doctrine is set forth and then see how it is balanced by the practical teaching of 4, 5, 6? See

Whenever we speak of so-and-so living a consistent Christian life, we mean that he practices what he preaches. Too many of our preachers, when they preach, mean in effect, "don't do as I do, but do as I say." Paul was able to say, "be ye followers of me." Would that more of us could speak in that manner!

Man's ideas of social problems and government always fail because of the human element involved. We find the ideals, all we need, in the Word of God, Man cannot come up to these in his own strength, but when Christ lives in one, then it can be done. Thit is the secret of it all. Not the life we live out the Christ living in us is what counts.

TRUTH FOR YOUTH

Comparisons and contrasts are very valuable aids in Bible study. They can be applied with good results in the study of Acts. They are best found by structural outlines. You will find these explained in "The Principle of Structure in Scripture" by Andrew H. Morton (send for your free copy), "How to Enjoy the Bible" by E. W. Bullinger (will send you a copy for $4.25 postpaid), and also in "Figures of Speech" by E. W. Bullinger (now out of print and very scarce).

We have spoken of the fact that Acts is mainly made up of the ministries of Peter and Paul. In Acts 1:15 to 2:13 you will find the preparation of the 12, with Peter at the head, for their ministry. In contrast to this, and yet parallel, you will find the preparation of Paul and Barnabas for their ministry in Acts 13:1-3.

Now we must digress here a minute to settle a very important question. It has been suggested that at Acts 13 is the place where Paul began his ministry of the dispensation of the mystery. This is going to raise 2 very serious questions, and I will leave it to you to supply the answers.

1. Read Acts 15 very carefully. It is about a council at Jerusalem, made up of Christian Jews, not a Gentile in the bunch. The question before them is whether the Gentile converts, under the ministry of Paul and Barnabas, should be made to become Jews by the rite of circumcision and the keeping of the law. Do you think for a moment that Paul would ever have let any question concerning the gospel of the dispensation of the mystery go before such a council? Do you think that such a council would have recognized Paul's ministry at that time if it had been a preaching of the gospel of the dispensation of the mystery? How could members of the dispensation of the mystery be subject to the ordinances set forth in the council for Gentiles (Acts 15:20)? Compare this with Col. 2:20-23. If the Gentile believers were subject to "the powers that be, " then why should they not still be subject to such powers? Could it be that in the dispensation of the kingdom the Jew should be subject to the law and at the same time the Gentile enjoy freedom from the law and be under grace?

2. No apostle ever stressed walking according to the calling as did Paul; yet, if Paul had known the secret before Acts 28, why did he take a Jewish vow, shave his head, and go into the temple in an act of Jewish worship?Could he know and preach one dispensation and practice another? (*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*)(*) DEAR YOUNG FOLKS: I think that the hardest thing for us to believe from the Bible is what it says about the condition of our own hearts. We just cannot believe that we are as bad as the Word says we are. We cannot give up the fact that there is a little good in all of us. Yet this very idea proves our undoing sooner or later. With that idea in mind we do not rely upon Christ as we ought and so we have a fall.

But thru the ages there have been a series of trials and tests of man, and each one has proven the incorrigibility and corruptness which results in the hating of God. Man is prone to excuse himself and blame Satan for all his meanness. But the Millennium is going to be the final test and exposure of the wickedness of the human heart. There are those who today think that man is not being given a fair chance. They seem to think that if he was given a world in which there was no Devil he would show forth good and would attain unto a near perfect condition. Satan shall be bound! The King of righteousness shall come to Sion and rule. He will punish quickly every sin. He will have a completely holy nation right in the center of the earth so that they may be an example of righteousness. Also there shall be the power and presence of the Holy Spirit to quicken and save. This will last for a whole thousand years. Yet it will turn out that man will be no different than at the beginning, It will be shown that he is uncurably corrupt from the very core of his being. It will be shown that every imagination of his heart is evil continually.

There will be none to object with any argument when God finally ends His day of grace and judges mankind. Man will then know that only a new creation will ever come up to the demands of holiness.

Now all this has a very practical application today. Many people, when they get caught, complain that they never had a chance. Young folks will try to lay the blame on their parents. Older folks will try to lay the blame on the community or the government. But all the time the whole trouble is in their own carnal hearts.

You cannot run away from all this. You can change schools or move to a new community, or get another job. Running away only weakens what little moral fiber you may have left.

The only solution to the whole mess is to have God create in you a new heart and then put into practice the doctrine. That is what makes the saint.

Sincerely in HIM, Cocar M. Baker

-THE EDITOR'S DESK-

A REPORT has been received from England that Mr. Welch has arrived safe and sound. Many will thankfully remember for a long time to come his ministry among us during May and June.

MISTAKES will happen, and the more so while we have been busy with the Welch trip and the great increase in book orders during that time. So if we have missed you in any way or your order is not right, let us know. We think we have sent out all the Chapel pictures that were ordered. If you have not gotten yours, write us.

SUBSTITUTION is the gospelfor the sinner; IDENTIFICATION is the gospelfor the saint.

BACK COPIES of TFT available back to #62 except #65 is all gone. Sets of these are free to those who ask for them.

COMPANION BIBLES: In buckram $12. In quatter leather $16. Full leather $24. Teachers, pastors, and Bible students find this valuable in the study of the Word.

TRUTH FOR TODAY is sent free to anyone anywhere. Just ask for it. If you know of any that would be interested in it, let us have their names and addresses.
